Suggestions for Speaking Spanish in the Home

One of the best ways to help your child learn Spanish is to simply start using the vocabulary in your daily conversations. This may seem intimidating at first, but know that you don't necessarily have to speak entire sentences in Spanish. You can just insert Spanish words into English sentences. For example, you could say, "I see dos squirrels in the bird feeder." (Let's hope you don't.) Then, as your vocabulary grows, you can begin to add more and more Spanish words to your sentences. Here are some possible situations where you could practice the Spanish number vocabulary with your children:

- Ask questions that require a number for the answer like "How many eggs do you want for breakfast, uno or dos?"
- Use the vocabulary when playing board games or card games.
- Practice counting things around the house in Spanish.
- Count by even and odd numbers in Spanish.
- Do math partly in Spanish.
- Use the number vocabulary while shopping.
- Read simple number books in Spanish.
- Play "Store" in Spanish with your preschooler or kindergartner.
- Use number words while cooking.

Using number vocabulary in situations such as these on a daily basis will help both you and your children become more confident Spanish speakers.

Enjoy your Spanish learning adventure!
